You wonder how to apply your knowledge acquired during your study in the humanitarian field? Are you interested in developing your skills doing a meaningful work and making a difference for the ones in need.

The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) will hold a special event at Maison Africaine for resident students and open to everyone to discuss this matter in depth and present working realities and job opportunities.

The ICRC is looking for young professionals willing to join its humanitarian efforts worldwide. A broad range of different profiles are needed such as Political Sciences specialists, Agronomists, Veterinarians, Engineers, Medical professionals, Interpreters, Logisticians, etc.

Humanitarian missions with the ICRC enable you to protect and assist people enduring the consequences of armed conflicts and other situations of violence. You can help them find ways to cope and to build bridges to a more secure future and lobby on their behalf. A life experience that will change your life while making a difference for the needy ones. Working with us will draw you into a completely new rewarding world.

To give you a more detailed picture, the ICRC will hold a presentation at Maison Africaine on Thursday 30th November 2017 starting from 19:00 to 21:00 pm followed by an open discussion about humanitarian work, skills, profiles wanted and job opportunities. A special occasion to learn, share and meet ICRC recruitment adviser.

Looking forward to meeting you at Maison Africaine: Rue d'Alsace-Lorraine 33, 1050 Bruxelles
